

THE FACTORY TIMES

December 2019 & January 2020
Fall Issue Three

THE FACTORY TIMES

pursuing creativity.

CONTENTS

PUBLICATION DIRECTOR

Mark Yetter

LEAD DESIGNER

Bobby Zuch

CHIEF EDITOR

Taylor Manley

DESIGNERS

Ariana Emad
Benny Garden
Kyle Frenette

WRITERS

Christopher Bovee de Soto
Justin Savoy
Nick Byard

VOLUNTEERS

Linda Paredes

ADVISORS

Kathleen Taylor
Ryan Lizardi

SPECIAL THANKS TO:

GENESIS YEARBOOK

Alexandra Gostev
Caymen Carter
James Johnson
Melky St. Surin
Robby Zambito

SUNY POLY PRINT SHOP

Publication Guidelines

The Factory Times is published monthly and funded through advertising revenue and a portion of the mandatory student activities fee. It is written, designed, and published by the students of SUNY Poly. The articles inside do not reflect the views of SUNY Poly, the Student Association of SUNY Poly, or The Factory Times, but rather the view of that article's author. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or any means, except as may be expressly permitted in writing by the Publication Director.

The CNY Guide to Winter Driving.....	4
An Interview with the Co-Owners of the Ambassador Music Group.....	6
Christmas in November?.....	11
Five Video Games to Enjoy this Holiday Season.....	14
Poly Poll: November 15th -- Is it Christmas Yet?.....	16
College Student Bunk In Program at Delmar-Bethlehem EMS.....	18
Last Christmas Movie Review.....	19
Scenes from Poly.....	20
R.I.P. Thanksgiving (Benny's Drawings).....	21
Team Trees.....	22
Winter Poetry.....	24
CAB / AHAB Events of December & January.....	27

The CNY Guide to Winter Driving

Snow driving is a skill that all Central New Yorkers need to have. Road conditions change drastically in the winter months, so our driving habits should change as well. People that treat winter driving the same as summer driving are much more likely to encounter issues. As college students, we may not have a whole lot of driving experience, especially during the winter months, but this article should help anyone and everyone who feels unprepared or a little nervous about driving in the snow. Following these tips will decrease the likelihood of you experiencing car issues this winter, both on the road and in the driveway.

Start Your Car Before You're Ready to Leave

- Starting your car before you leave will save you from a cornucopia's worth of problems. The main purpose of starting your car early is to start getting warm air circulating in your car. When you start up your car, make sure the heat is on full blast. This will ensure that the car will be nice and warm when you get inside.

Invest in a Snow Brush

- Having a snow brush is not necessary, as you can brush snow and ice off with a regular broom or even your hand. However, snow brushes are much more efficient in ridding your car of snow before you hit the roads. All snow brushes should have an ice scraper implemented into the design, which makes removing ice from your windshields extremely easy.

Make Sure Your Car is (relatively) Clean

- Having a clean car is important, especially when you have passengers that may judge you for your dirt infested mats. However, having a clean car can also be beneficial during winter. Having excess dirt in your car can increase the chance of condensation occurring on your windshield. Having a clean car will decrease the chance of this happening.

Free Your Windshield Wipers From Ice

- This may seem like a relatively simple tip. However, there are a lot of people that forget to check their wipers before they start their commute. If you do not break the ice off your windshield wipers, they will not work. In fact, sometimes trying to turn them on when they are frozen can result in them breaking. You can do a variety of things to break the ice off, but hitting the wipers against the windshield a few times is quick and efficient. Having functional windshield wipers are a must, especially if you find yourself driving in a snow storm.

Take Advantage of the Defrosters

- The defrosters in your car are most commonly used to get rid of condensation on windows. Some people avoid using them, as it takes time for them to take full effect. However, it will drastically improve visibility, which is a must in winter.

Think About Where You're Parking

- Try to park in areas where there isn't a lot of snow build-up, as this will decrease the chances of you getting stuck.

Take Your Turns/Corners Slow.

- Roads during winter are often very slippery. Slowing down with ease before you take a turn will warrant for much safer driving. Slowing down too fast can result in you losing control of your vehicle. Remember, slow and steady wins the race, especially in winter.

Maintain a Constant Speed on Hills

- Changing speed on hills is a big NO in winter. If you start to speed up, you may start to slide and lose control of your vehicle. If you slow down, you may not be able to make it all the way up the hill and may start rolling down it instead.

Turn Down the Radio.

- Listening to music while driving is a necessity for a lot of drivers. However, driving in the winter is much more difficult when your radio is blasting music. Consider turning the volume down and direct most of your attention to the road.

Check the Weather Before you Head Out.

- Checking the weather before you head out is helpful in winter. This way, you're able to look out for any road cancellation(s) or incoming snowstorms. If there is a snowstorm coming, consider staying home if travel is not necessary.

Winter driving is something that most people despise and fear. It can be very dangerous if you do not heed the road conditions. There truly is a drastic change between summer and winter roads which ultimately requires a big change in your driving style. It may seem unnecessary, but it most definitely isn't. Driving is not an innate skill, it has to be learned. Winter driving is the same way. Especially if it is your first winter where you will be driving alone. Following these tips will prove to be rather helpful when you are getting ready for your snowy commute. Safe travels!

Written by Justin Savoy
Designed by Benny Garden

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE CO-OWNERS OF THE AMBASSADOR MUSIC GROUP

WRITTEN AND CONDUCTED BY:
LINDA PAREDES

DESIGNED BY:
KYLE FRENETTE

On October 2nd, I got the chance to interview the owners of the Ambassador Music Group (AMG), Andrew Gabriel, owner and artist manager, and Rose De Guzman, owner and marketing director. The two sat down with me to discuss the upcoming festival, Rocktober and what it's like to work in music management.

TELL US ABOUT YOURSELF.

I am Andrew and the person sitting next to me is Rose. We are the owners of AMG and we both have worked full-time since last year. I work as an Artist Manager and Rose is the Marketing Director. We help artists with their management [in areas] such as album/single release strategy and promotion, performance coaching, business negotiation, and image/brand management. One of the artists we work with is C.K. & The Rising Tide, who released a music video called Follow the Buzzard.

WHAT DO YOU DO?

We didn't know what it meant to work as an artist manager or marketing director until we started doing it. I was a drummer in the band since 2004 and then another band asked if I could manage them. I worked full-time at a day job and recorded my second album. We all started from the bottom and were not music/business majors. I was a math major and Rose was a Biochemistry major.

DO YOU HAVE INTERNSHIPS?

We started taking interns last year. We have three interns working in marketing, analytics, and band relations.

WHAT IS ROCKTOBERFEST?

The main mission is to feature local musicians, partner with local businesses, and help local non-profits. We want to help children and children. We are working with Community Miracles in Action (CMA) for this year's Rocktoberfest. The CMA give out food and necessities for teens. They encourage art and music to teens with the Louder Dreams Entertainment Program. We are having YMCA bring activities for families to enjoy and food trucks.

IS THIS THE FIRST ROCKTOBERFEST?

This is the second Rocktoberfest. The first Rocktoberfest was more of an adult concert. For this year's Rocktoberfest, we are trying to make it a family-friendly concert. The goal is for everyone to have fun especially with families who have kids.

WHO ARE YOU PARTNERING WITH FOR THIS YEAR'S ROCKTOBERFEST?

We have many artists in the lineup: Madison Vandenburg who is the recent finalist on American Idol. She [recently] visited CMA for autographs and to talk about her journey. We also have CK and the Rising Tide(Recently at the NYS Fair), Le Modernist(We have worked with them for a while now), Vince Paul Mary, Julia Gargano(R&B Soul), David and the Antics(Hip hop/pop-soul), and This Strange Paradise(Indie rock).

WHAT IS IT LIKE PLANNING FOR THIS BIG EVENT?

Last year we started planning six weeks before the concert date and that nearly made our heads go insane. This year we started six months earlier. For next year's Rocktoberfest, we are starting to plan in January. Some of the planning included organizing a team of people, the production team, artists (We had about 37 applications, it was so hard for us to choose), sponsors, marketing, spreading the word, diversifying the lineup, and bringing in games and art so it can appeal to everyone.

WHAT TYPES OF MUSIC SCENES HAVE YOU WORKED IN OVER THE YEARS?

We started working with punk music scenes then morphed into managing a pop/rock artist, and then into pop and Americana. Marketing side, there are many genres that have different demographics.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE OVERALL MUSIC SCENES TODAY?

In California, which we originally are from, artists are usually competing against each other. When we moved to Albany, we noticed the different music scenes that came together as a community, that is not like what the music scene is in California. Everyone works together, the competition was more friendly, and the media outlets are also friendly.

WHAT IS IT LIKE BEING A ROCK STAR TODAY?

[It's] hard work but also fun when you get to perform on big stages. Then, you can hang out with other artists and converse with the fans. This is only for a few days a month. The rest of the month, they are hard at work. Make sure to take your time to write good songs. Music is live-streamed anywhere today that listeners can hear a ton of good music all the time. The downside is that your music might be hard to hear if it isn't amazing. It takes a few months between writing new songs and releases for planning and marketing. There is no instant feedback, it takes a lot of time and [more] work than people think.

IF SOMEONE WANTS TO BE A PROFESSIONAL ROCK MUSICIAN, WHERE WOULD THEY START?

It takes a lot more than just creating good music. Music is a team sport and you need to make sure you surround yourself with a good team that can work with you and supports you. Never let rejection get you down. It's the starting of your own business, it's part of the process. You must undergo a lot of doubts and struggles. It's hard but that's okay.

It was great to speak with AMG to learn more about the music industry and Rocktoberfest. This year's Rocktoberfest was on Saturday, October 5 in Colonie Park, Albany, NY from 12pm to 6pm. The event was a hit and they're already gearing up for next year with plans to make Rocktober bigger and better!

PHOTOS COURTESY OF THE AMBASSADOR MUSIC GROUP

Christmas in November?

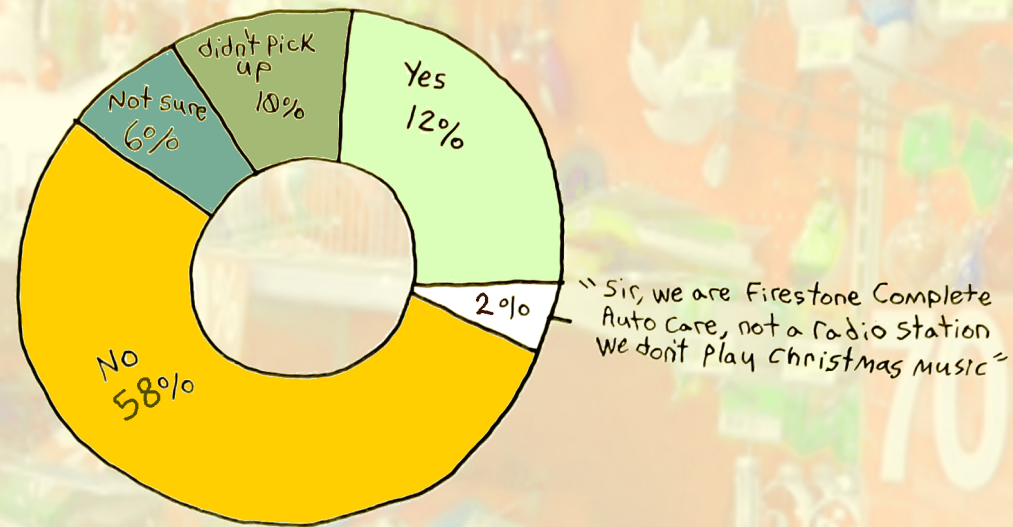

Written by Nick Byard
Designed by Benny Garden

It's that time of the year again: that awkward interlude between Halloween and Black Friday. Autumn has painfully dragged itself out and taken its final breath, and suddenly winter is here. All the trees are barren but the conifers, and snow is starting to stick to the ground. When you open your door every day, you're smacked by the bitter cold that makes every breath you take feel clearer somehow. It's the intermediate: the adolescent stage in between two beautiful seasons...and it can't be over soon enough.

If you ever ask someone "What's your favorite month?", no one will ever say "November, of course." Sure, Thanksgiving is great, what with the obscene amounts of food and seeing family members you otherwise wouldn't talk to. But everyone knows that once Thanksgiving's over, it's Christmas time, which is sad, really, because Thanksgiving should be something that people look forward to. But no. Not even 24 hours after you've finished stuffing your face, it's Black Friday, and then, all of a sudden, it's Christmas. We so desperately try to push November to the side that some stores actually start selling their holiday merchandise as early as November 1st, often alongside Christmas music. This got me thinking: How soon is too soon to play Christmas music? When does the Christmas season really begin? To answer these questions, I knew I had to conduct my own personal research.

The plan was simple: I would call fifty different, entirely unique shops around the Utica-Rome area and ask if they currently played Christmas music. If not, I would ask whether or not they planned on playing it in the near-future. I quickly got to work on a list of stores. It had to be diverse; cover all the bases. Walmart, GameStop, BestBuy, Lowe's, RiteAid, ALDI, Dunkin' Donuts, Michael's... Gas stations, retailers, department stores, restaurants...Big-name chains and local shops alike. If it was a store where I thought that music would be played over the speakers, I included it. Over the course of three hours, I called each of the stores on my list, and compiled my findings into a table. Based on these results, I visualized my data into a series of charts:

Does your store currently play Christmas music?

Do you know when, if ever, you'll start to play Christmas music?

As shown by the visuals, of the fifty stores that I interviewed, thirty said that they weren't currently playing Christmas music. Of these thirty, nearly half said that they planned on starting to incorporate Christmas music into their rotation the week of Thanksgiving. This would bring the number of stores playing Christmas music, as of Black Friday, up to twenty-six. For those keeping score at home, that means that fifty-two percent of all the stores surveyed would be playing Christmas music by the end of November, almost a full month before the actual holiday. I don't know about you, but I personally think that's a bit excessive. To me, the Christmas season starts about half-way in between Thanksgiving and Christmas day, and ends at midnight, December 26th on the dot. You don't see Halloween music being played on October first, why should Christmas be any different? Interestingly, it seemed as though retail stores, such as WalMart, Ollie's, and Michael's, all began playing Christmas music as soon as Halloween was over. This isn't a new development, either: retail stores have been known to play Christmas songs in their stores earlier and earlier each year, in a process which has come to be called the "Christmas Creep." As to the motivations behind playing Christmas music so early, an article from The Tampa Bay Times suggests that it may have a positive effect on holiday sales - depending, of course, on whether or not the customers shopping at these stores in question enjoy listening to it. The opposite can also be said, though: If someone doesn't enjoy listening to Christmas music, they are more likely to become irritable, annoyed, or perhaps leave the store altogether. In fact, studies have shown that listening to Christmas music too often and too early can actually have a negative impact on one's mental health.

Of course, despite my efforts to diversify my research, it shouldn't be taken very seriously: It wasn't a government-issued study, nor a project commissioned by the university: It was a short, simple survey conducted by someone who's tired of hearing Christmas music much too early year after year. That's just one man's opinion, though. I personally know people who think that, as soon as Halloween ends, it's free game, and I say more power to them. Some of the cashiers and managers that I interviewed even thought the same thing. So, I open the question up to you, dear reader. How early do you think Christmas music should be played? Is it after Halloween? Is it at the conclusion of Macy's annual Thanksgiving Parade? Is it December 1st? What do you think?

5 Video Games to Enjoy This Holiday Season

WRITTEN AND DESIGNED BY:

KYLE FRENETTE

This holiday season, there are a variety of video games to pick up and play. Whether you know of a loved one who could want some of these titles as a present or if you're an avid gamer yourself and want to pick up some copies on your own, here are 5 video games coming out just in time for the holidays.

Available on:
Nintendo Switch

Release Date:
October 31st

Developer: Next Level Games

The cowardly Mario brother returns to his ghost-hunting roots as Luigi must save his brother and the famous Princess Peach from a haunted hotel full of ghosts, both new and old.

With the new Poltergust G-00 at hand, Luigi can slam, blow away, and vacuum up all sorts of paranormal creatures. Featuring a brand new story and multiplayer options for up to 8 people to enjoy, this game will surely make for a scary good time.

The beloved first-person shooter franchise is back and better than ever! However, don't think of this as old ground.

With tons of new features such as night-vision goggles, the ability to identify non-combatant computer characters, and a multiplayer "Realism" mode, there's a lot of ways to experience this new installment.

With a new, revamped, "Spec-Ops" mode included as well, get ready to take down your enemies in action-packed warfare.

Available on:
PS4, Xbox One, PC

Release Date:
October 25th

Developer: Infinity Ward

Available on:
PS4, Xbox One, PC

Release Date:
November 15th

Developer: Respawn Entertainment

Based on the beloved series that takes place far far away, here you can become a Jedi in the Star Wars Universe and rebuild the Jedi Order.

In this third-person action adventure game, you can explore a multitude of areas including forests, canyons, and jungles. You can also master lightsaber combat and strike, block, and dodge your way to victory!

With this adventure game, you'll master the force and rewrite your name in Jedi legends!

A brand new journey into the world of Pokemon. Explore the brand new Galar region, discover Pokemon both new and old, and battle gym leaders and other rival trainers on your way to becoming the champion!

With new features such as being able to battle giant Pokemon with new Gigantamax Pokemon, playing with your Pokemon in the Pokemon Camp, or witnessing new changes to classic Pokemon with Galarian Forms, there's much to explore.

Whether you're a newcomer or a seasoned Pokemon trainer, Sword and Shield has much to offer any gamer.

Available on:
Nintendo Switch

Release Date:
November 15th

Developer: Game Freak

Available on:
PS4, Xbox One, PC

Release Date:
October 25th

Developer: Obsidian Entertainment

Get ready to explore the future. In this brand new action rpg, you find yourself in the middle of the Halcyon Colony where a host of factions are competing for the right to rule.

As you take on missions and jobs, the actions you make will ultimately decide the fate of Halcyon as you explore and defend yourself in this strange new world.

Whether you're an rpg pro or not, everyone can agree this will make for a fun adventure.

POLY POLL:

IT'S ONLY MID-NOVEMBER. IS IT THE CHRISTMAS SEASON YET?

DESIGNED BY BOBBY ZUCH

THANKS FOR YOUR CORNER DOODLES!
 REYNALDO MERCADO
 DEVONTE GRIFFITHS
 DEVON SCHIEFER

College Student Bunk in Program at Delmar-Bethlehem EMS

Rent Free Housing and a Unique College Experience

Delmar-Bethlehem EMS is beginning a bunk in program that will provide rent free housing to qualifying college students in exchange for being an active and responding ambulance crew member. Available to college students living in the Albany area who are EMT certified and ready for duty.

Applicants must:

- Be at least 19 years of age before the beginning of the Bunk-In Program residency
- Be a fulltime student entering their second year of college (no freshman) or EMT-P student in the Albany area or a surrounding county and maintain school enrollment throughout the length of bunk-in participation
- Have a permanent residence outside of the Capital District
- Be NYS EMT certified and maintain certification for the entire period of service
- Ride 24 scheduled hours per week on an ambulance crew
- Meet all the requirements for membership in Delmar-Bethlehem EMS
- Have EMT experience with an ambulance service in New York State, be "Crew Chief" ready, and be able to quickly assume duty as a Crew Chief on an ambulance crew
- Meet all the requirements to be a driver for DBEMS and have either CEVO or EVOC training

Bunk-In Program participants will receive residency in a two-bedroom furnished apartment that will be shared with another Bunk-In participant. The apartment building also houses a volunteer FD Bunk-In program and is one mile from the Delmar-Bethlehem EMS North Station. On-duty time will be spent in one of our two EMS stations with recently upgraded crew day rooms, kitchens, study areas, and private bunk rooms. DBEMS volunteer shifts run from 6:00 pm to midnight and midnight to 6:00 am. Average call volume on the 12-hour evening/night shift is a total of 4 calls per day, split between two on-duty ambulance crews. Duty uniforms and crew equipment will be provided.

To obtain an application, please send a letter of interest and resume that outlines how you meet the above requirement to Jen Kerr at jen.kerr@delmarems.org. Program will be available Fall of 2019.

To learn about Delmar-Bethlehem EMS, please go to www.DelmarEMS.org.

Last Christmas Movie Review

*Written By: Justin Savoy
Designed By: Ariana Emad*

Last Christmas (2019), directed by Paul Feig, is a film that depicts the power of love in a way that will leave audiences shocked. The film's namesake comes from the English pop duo, Wham!'s, iconic love song. The film's throwback soundtrack is coupled with a spectacular cast of Emilia Clarke (Kate), Henry Golding (Tom), and Michelle Yeoh (Santa).

The movie tells the story of Katarina (who goes by Kate), an aspiring singer who takes up a job as an Elf in a small department store. The store's owner goes by the penname of Santa due to its wide inventory of Christmas themed decorations. Kate eventually comes into contact with Tom, who likes to hang out by the store. Tom is instantly attracted to Kate which is portrayed in the film by his repeated attempts to take her on a date. Kate tries her hardest to resist Tom due to him "not being her type," but eventually says yes to him if he agrees to stop bothering her. Following the typical cliché romance theme of cinema, Kate falls head over heels for Tom and the rest of the film is fixated around their tumultuous, yet adorable relationship.

This movie has a fairly simple plot that isn't too difficult to follow. There is, however, a big twist that is intertwined into the plot, completely disrupting the steady flow of the story. This twist fully alters the mood of this film. However, it is coupled with an ending that really brings this film full-circle.

There are plenty of creative elements that make this film unique and enticing to viewers. As mentioned before, this film features music by Wham!. There are also some songs by George Michael, who started his own solo career after the duo split up. "Too Funky" (1990), "Heal the Pain" (1990), "Praying for Time" (1990), and Fantasy (1987) are all George Michael's songs present in the film. However, the iconic Wham! song "Last Christmas" (1984) is by far the most popular of them all and serves as the focal point of the film's plot. What's wonderful about this soundtrack is that you don't have to be a George Michael fan to appreciate it. If you happen to be a George Michael fan, the presence of his songs will leave you a little more satisfied by the end of Last Christmas. Along with the music, this film also incorporates some amazing visuals. The near-constant appearance of bright colors and Christmas lights leave the audience feeling excited about the holiday season. This film even goes so far as to have a costume that is completely illuminated by Christmas lights. The beautiful visuals coupled with the great soundtrack are what make this movie perfect for the holiday season.

Last Christmas truly is a must-see movie this season that you can see at your local movie theatre. The cast of this movie immediately attracts viewers, but their skills are what make this story so great. The cast members all bring their own special thing(s) to this movie. Whether it is listening to Emilia Clarke's (Kate) sarcastic remarks, Henry Golding's (Tom) radiant positivity, or Michelle Yeoh's (Santa) quirkiness and charm. All of these personalities fit together well in this film. Although the romantic parts of this film may seem a little distracting to some viewers, the dramatic element present dials some of the romance down, so it isn't too overbearing. The heavy backstory that is covered in some of the dialogue is well masked by the aforementioned humor, which lightens up the film's mood during these times. The presence of "Last Christmas" (the song) serves as a symbol in this film that will shock most viewers. Romance, drama, and comedy are just some of the countless elements in this film that make it the perfect film for this holiday season.

Overall, Last Christmas is a great movie with a perfect mix of drama and romance. There truly isn't a target audience for this film, as there are components that attract all sorts of viewers. Fans of Wham!/George Michael will be interested in the soundtrack, younger viewers will appreciate the drama in this story, and people in relationships may live for the romance. This film is likely to be a hit this holiday season and is well worth your time and money.

SCENES FROM POLY

In Memoriam: Thanksgiving

A MAJOR SHOUT OUT AND THANK YOU TO GENESIS YEARBOOK FOR THE COURTESY OF ALLOWING US TO FEATURE THEIR PHOTOS IN SCENES FROM POLY!

Team Trees

Written By: Nicholas Byard

Designed By: Kyle Frenette

Every once in a while, there's an idea for positive change that spreads across the internet like wildfire. Some of these come in the form of viral challenges, such as the ALS Association's Ice Bucket Challenge, which picked up steam in July of 2014 and managed to raise over $220M for those afflicted with the disease. Others, meanwhile, have come about from the concentrated efforts of public figures. YouTubers and streamers, in particular, have had an increasingly large role in gathering donations for charitable causes. In 2013 (and again in 2016), Felix Kjellberg, better known by his internet alias "PewDiePie," ran a campaign to collect $100,000 in donations for Charity: Water, a non-profit organization which aims to bring clean water to those who need it all around the world. More recently, Twitch streamer Ben Lupo, also known as "DrLupo," set a world-record breaking precedent when he raised $920,000 in just 4 1/2 hours while livestreaming, with proceeds going to St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

As of October 25th, 2019, YouTuber Jimmy Donaldson, more widely known as "Mr. Beast," became the latest on-line personality to use his immense influence for good. Donaldson, known for his outrageous projects such as "World's Largest Game of Dodgeball" and "I Put 100 Million Orbeez in My Friend's Backyard," decided to take a break from his normally goofy material to promote a cause which has been receiving massive media attention lately: the environment. After months of planning, Donaldson posted a video announcing he has teamed up with hundreds of content creators, including the likes of Mark Rober, PewDiePie, Ninja, CircleToonsHD, Casey Neistat, Rhett and Link, and many more to help plant 20 million trees by the end of 2019, with the help of the Arbor Day Foundation, who says that it will plant a tree for every dollar donated. As of 10/26, just 24 hours after posting his video about the project, over 3.8 million dollars have been donated, and both Donaldson and Mark Rober's videos sit atop YouTube's trending page.

"I personally haven't always been the most environmentally friendly. We've burnt the box fort, and we've done many other dumb things. And a lot of you may be of the mindset of the old me that was basically, y'know, someone else will figure it out. But that's not how it works. We genuinely need all the help we can get...I've literally tried my best to do everything I can, and now it's you guys' turn...We only have one Earth, and it's important we take care of it."

Jimmy Donaldson, A.K.A. Mr. Beast

If you'd like to help Mr. Beast, and join the thousands of people who have helped Team Trees, visit teamtrees.org!

Winter Poetry

Haiku #1: The Man Made of Snow

Heading to the store
Buying carrots and a scarf
To make a snowman

Haiku #2: The Sledlympics

Running up the hill
Dragging your sled right behind
Now it's time to race!

Haiku #3: No School Today!

Waking up to snow
Run downstairs to check the news
Snow Day here I come!

Haiku #4: YOUnique

Snowflakes start to fall
Gliding through the air with ease
No two are the same

Acrostic Poem:

Sliding along the ice
Kicking your feet in unison
As you start to speed up
Try to do a fancy trick
Instead, falling unto the ice
Nominated for worst skater of the year
Gratefully accepting the award

Haiku # 5: Playing in the Snow

Laying in the snow
Doing lazy jumping jacks
Creating angels

Earn an Advanced Degree at SUNY Poly

College of Arts + Sciences

- Computational Mathematical Modeling (post-bachelor's certificate)
- Data Analysis (post-bachelor's certificate)
- Information Design + Technology (MS)

College of Business Management

- Accountancy (MS)
Concentration in: Forensic Accounting + Valuation
Available Option
- Forensic Accounting + Valuation (post-bachelor's certificate)
- Technology Management (MBA)
Concentrations in: accounting and finance, business management, health informatics, human resource management, marketing management

College of Engineering

- Computer + Information Science (MS)
- Cybersecurity: Network + Computer Security (MS)

College of Health Sciences

- Family Nurse Practitioner* (MS and post-master's advanced certificate)
- Nursing Education (MS and post-master's advanced certificate)
- Transformational Leadership in Nursing (MS and post-master's advanced certificate)

College of Nanoscale Science + Engineering (Albany NanoTech Complex)

- Advanced Technology (MS)
- Nanobioscience (MS and PhD)
- Nanoscale Engineering (MS and PhD)
- Nanoscale Science (MS and PhD)
- Medicine + Nanoscale Science or Nanoscale Engineering (MD/PhD)

* Fully Online  Hybrid

The $60 application fee is waived for SUNY Poly students and alumni.
sunypoly.edu/graduate-admissions

Learn More!

Contact the Graduate Admissions Office
Call: 315-792-7347 or 1-866-278-6948
E-mail: graduate@sunypoly.edu

DECEMBER 2019

JANUARY 2020

EVENTS PAID FOR BY YOUR STUDENT ACTIVITIES FEE

Tues. Dec 3rd - Comedian Adam Grabowski
12:30 PM - Student Center MPR

Tues. Jan 28th - Comedian Tyler Boeh
8:30 PM - Student Center MPR

Fri. Jan 31st - Winter Fest
7 PM - Student Center MPR

Fri. Dec 6th - De-stress Day
12PM - Student Center MPR

Fri. Jan 24th - Ice Cream Social
7PM - Student Center MPR

Sat. Jan 25th - Musical Bingo
2PM - Student Center MPR

Tues. Jan 28th - Lego Day
12PM - Student Center MPR

Fri. Jan 31st - Winter Fest
7 PM - Student Center MPR

